GERMANY TOTTERS TOWARD INEVITABLE COLLAPSE WITH ALLIES HAMMERING AT FRONT AND REAR AND OVERHEAD; AMERICANS SCOOP UP NAZI POSSESSIONS AND PRESS ON

Shattering and City-Wrecking Air Assault Continues

SEIZE AN AIRFIELD

Army Remagen Bridge-head Now Covers 120 Square Miles

By International News Service

With the enemy at both the front and rear doors and pounding on the overhead, Nazi Germany's military house tottered today toward inevitable collapse.

In the West, the American First Third Army, smashing across man territory, snatched up Nazi sessions and pressing onward and the heart of the Reich, the on the East mighty forces of the Red Army systematically eliminated German resistance on the Rhine flank and prepared for the final drive on Berlin.

From the skies above came a continual city-wrecking and shattering Allied air assault, which yesterday reached a new peak of intensity in an American attack on crumbling Berlin.

Troops of the American First Army took over one German airfield at the Rhine and were closing today on a second. The captured one was the Windhagen Airfield, eight miles east of the Rhine.

First Army forces also put an end to Nazi through-traffic use of the six-lane Cologne-Frankfurt highway east of the Rhine by seizing a six-mile stretch of the main motor route and placing 10 miles of it under artillery fire.

The First Army Remagen bridge-head now covers 120 square miles. Loss of the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen, in the collapse of which 200 American engineers died, was minimized by a spokesman for the Allied Headquarters, who stated that the bridge could still be used as a pontoon bridge across the river and that a large force is already across the Rhine.

Veteran U. S. Third Army troops moved 13 miles through crumbling defenses and threatened to capture an estimated force of 80,000 Germans. They sped through the nine-Saar-Moselle triangle and night their way into the key town of Bingen at the confluence of the Rhine and Nahe rivers.

On the eastern front, Red Army troops captured the city of Kollnburg, 65 miles southeast of Stettin, sealing the last pocket of Nazi resistance along 185 miles of the Baltic coast from the Gdynia area to the Baltic Bay.

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

GERMAN TROOPS, CIVILIANS IN CONFUSED ROUT

Paris—German troops and civilians in the Saar Basin fled toward the Rhine in confused rout today before the advance of 13 Third Army infantry and armored divisions which carved out fresh gains of more than four miles and cleared the last Nazis from Colmar.

Farther south where the Germans admitted that the Seventh Army had pierced the Siegfried Line, the Nazis were reported by Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters to be apparently in full retreat across the Alsace plain with the victorious Seventh Army hard on their heels.

Simultaneously the U. S. First Army expanded the Remagen bridge-head to a width of 15 miles and a depth of almost eight, seized control of a six-mile stretch of the famed Ruhr super-highway, captured an airfield eight miles east of the Rhine and closed in on a second German air field.

To the north, according to a Nazi DNB agency, the U. S. Ninth Army crossed the Rhine north of Duisburg, but the Germans claimed the Americans were forced to return to the west bank, while front dispatches disclosed that British patrols had forced their way through to the upper Rhine northwest of Nijmegen in Holland.

Allied headquarters revealed there was a time-lag in reports from the Third Army front for security reasons but disclosed that Gen. Patton's forces had cleared the key communications city of Bad Kreuznach and had advanced four miles beyond their Nahe river crossing to within 14 miles of Mainz.

Apparently a two-pronged attack was being directed toward Mainz by Gen. Patton's army as infantry forces which surged into Pingen at the confluence of the Nahe and Rhine were only 13 miles west of the city.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANEY BY SCRIBES

Selection of candidates for various offices took place at a meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Warrenton Township Fire Co. this week.

Nominations were made as follows: President, Mrs. O. P. Titus; vice-president, Mrs. Homer Yowell and Mrs. William Reigle; secretary, Mrs. Irvin Emerson; assistant secretary, Mrs. A. S. Tettemer; financial secretary, Mrs. Clara McKinstry treasurer, Mrs. C. Leroy Murray; and trustees, Mrs. Clara McKinstry, Mrs. John Scarborough and Mrs. A. S. Tettemer.

The election will take place on Wednesday, April 14, when a covered dish luncheon will be served. Prior to the selection of the candidates Mrs. Thomas Higginson's application for membership was received. Mrs. Leroy Murray reported favorable action had been taken on the application of Mrs. George Sturges.

What Doylestown is doing for the returning war veteran and what is planned for the future was outlined on Monday at a "good neighbor" meeting of the members of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars of that community.

This was the first time the two very active posts—A. R. Atkinson, Jr., No. 210, American Legion, and the Doylestown Post, No. 175, Veterans of Foreign Wars—had ever held a joint meeting. Over 125 veterans and a few guests attended the "get-together," which marked the beginning of what is hoped to be an annual affair.

The meeting was held at the "Vets" Home, with members of that organization as host. The next combined meeting will be held at the Legion Home.

The spirit of co-operation and comradeship was so pronounced that no doubt was left in the mind of any war veteran present, that Doylestown is far ahead of many other communities in rehabilitation service for returning veterans of the present war.

Veterans were welcomed by Post Commander E. A. Jepsen, of the V. F. W., and Post Commander Joseph G. Moutenay, of the American Legion. Both commanders expressed the opinion that the time has come when the two great organizations must "work together" in serving the returning veteran. They both expressed the hope that joint meetings of the two organizations should be held "at least once a year and preferably twice a year."

THORN IN THE NEW DEAL FLESH

Really to appreciate Pennsylvania's contribution to current discussions of national policy, one needs to sit day after day in the gallery of the House of Representatives—or pore over the Congressional Record.

A lone Pennsylvanian rises, time and again—often many times a day—to stand like Horatius at the Bridge, challenging the merry spenders of the New Deal to defend their endless handing out of borrowed money.

He is Congressman Robert L. Rich, a businessman from Woolrich, Clinton County.

He has brought to the National Congress a businessman's approach to national financing which, to the New Dealers, makes him as painful as a burr under a saddle.

By a sort of unanimous consent, Congressman Rich is the one who, when new expenditures are suggested, rises to demand:

"Where are you going to get the money?"

It may be that the question—or perhaps the inadequacy of any answers thus far found—has lost some of its original novelty; but the squirming efforts of New Deal spokesmen to avoid its implications are refreshing every time it is asked.

Persistent as the ticking of a clock, as unswerving as a gyroscope, the Keystone Congressman bores in, and brushes aside all efforts to ensnare him with red tape or mislead him with red herrings.

Only when he has driven home the point that the source of new expenditures, like the billions of dollars of old, is the same old lighthearted program of borrowing against the earnings of future generations, does he step aside and let the caucus-determined New Deal program take its course.

But until this point is made, nothing yet produced has swerved the persistent Mr. Rich from his criticisms—neither sarcasm, ridicule, mass exodus from the floor by all New Dealers, or usual and unusual varieties of parliamentary strategy.

The recent voting, on party lines, of $15,000,000 additional funds to complete a farm census desired by no one but a handful of bureaucrats—a census which will use up 27,000 employees in the midst of the labor shortage—gave the Pennsylvania Congressman opportunities of which he made full use.

But the recent session when the proposal to raise the limit on the national debt from 260 billion to 300 billion came before the House was the occasion when Mr. Rich really enjoyed a field day.

Chairman Doughton (North Carolina) of the Committee on Ways and Means had launched into a somewhat discursive explanation of the great advantages to the nation in a higher limit on debts.

Mr. Rich rose demurely for the purpose of interrogation.

His question consisted of asking Congressman

1st Army Unchecked by Bridge Collapse

With U. S. First Army Forces East of the Rhine—Unchecked by collapse of the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen with the loss of some 200 lives, troops of the U. S. First Army steadily expanded their bridgehead today.

GIVEN MEDAL FOR HER WAR PRISONER DADDY

Honor is Bestowed Upon Jacqueline Wichser, 7 Months Old

PRISONER OF GERMANS

As an air medal was pinned to her little white dress Jacqueline Wichser, seven-months old daughter of 2nd Lieutenant and Mrs. John H. Wichser, Jr., snuggled into the arms of her mother, Captain Frank Pomerantz, of the Air Technical Service Command, Middletown, attached the emblem of distinction.

The medal was awarded Saturday afternoon to Jacqueline for her father who is now a prisoner of war of the Germans.

The presentation took place in the Home of Bracken Post, American Legion, before members of the Wichser family, Legionnaires and other guests.

Bracken Post Commander, Harry Chapin extended greetings on behalf of the Post and said: "I believe this is the first time that such a ceremony has ever taken place in Bristol. As you know Lieutenant Wichser was shot down over Germany and taken prisoner. He was a former member of the Junior Drum and Bugle Corps and one of the finest fellows I have ever known."

Captain Pomerantz was introduced and as Jacqueline was carried forward by her mother, addressing his remarks to the infant daughter of the air hero, Captain Pomerantz said: "The Army through the President of the United States presents this citation: 'In the name of the President of the United States I present you with this air medal awarded your father.'"

The citation reads: "For meritorious achievement in aerial flight while participating in sustained operational activities against the enemy from July 7, 1944, to July 17, 1944. By order of the Secretary of War, Robert H. Doolittle, Brig. General, Acting The Adjutant General."

The medal is engraved "2nd Lieut. John H. Wichser, Jr., A. C." Jacqueline, too young to realize, the honor which was bestowed upon her father will undoubtedly in later years as she becomes acquainted with the fact, deeply cherish the event.

Her chubby little face and blue eyes are topped with a growth of jet black hair. All through the ceremony, as well as waiting for the beginning of the affair, Jacqueline never whimpered. She evidently knew that she was the center of interest in a history-making event.

2nd Lieut. Wichser enlisted right after the Pearl Harbor sneak attack upon the United States by the Japanese. He advanced to bombardier on a B-24 Liberator. He was reported missing July 17, 1944, and reported a prisoner of the Germans August of that year. His wife Eileen Wiltshire Wichser being so informed by the U. S. Government.

J. J. Hetherington, Harry Burbank and Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., all past commanders of the Post, spoke in complimentary terms of Lieut. Wichser as a member of the Junior Bugle and Drum Corps of the Cadets in his youth. He is the son of Councilman and Mrs. John H. Wichser.

Mrs. Wichser thanked Capt. Pomerantz for the medal and said she knew that her husband would be deeply appreciative of the honor and especially so, when he heard that his daughter had received it in his behalf.

The speakers complimented the Wichser family for their support of the Legion and its activities over a period of years. Two sons and a daughter of Councilman and Mrs. Wichser are former members of the Legion Cadet Corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rosser, of 315 McKinley street, have purchased a house on Emile Road, from Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Mathias. The Rossers plan to take up residence there this spring.

ARE THEY OUTLANDERS, TOO?

It frequently happens when any evil is discovered in the city of Washington that someone in authority in the national capital points to the ingress of people from all over the country and attributes to them the difficulties encountered.

The latest manifestation of this habit is revealed in a statement of Washington's health commissioner, George Ruhland, who said that the rabies situation there is "damnable," but added that a considerable number of rabid dogs have come from other parts of the country, that many dogs have been brought to Washington by government workers from other sections, notably from the South, where he said rabies is prevalent. Whether these dogs are flown in and out of Washington, or whether other means of transportation is also used, he did not say.

The first reaction of a citizen upon reading that explanation is to become rather angry, even if not rabid, but upon second thought the ire initially aroused tends to diminish. Practically all the evils from which people outside Washington suffer, insofar as inefficient, wasteful and bureaucratic government is concerned, are caused by people who went to Washington from other parts of the country.

It is well known that the maintenance men of Washington bureaucracy make heroic efforts to attract to that city people from other sections of the country. Scarcely a day passes that examinations are not announced to determine the mental fitness of outlanders to assist in spinning bureaucratic red tape in the national capital.

Not long after the applicants have been accredited and become safely ensconced in Washington, persons in authority there condemn them for the newest ills to which Washington may be heir. Right after the soundness of their judgment is attested by placing them on the payroll, some are berated for bringing mad dogs along. Cannot the framers of the examination ferret out this potential weakness beforehand, or did they come from other parts of the country, too?

ASSOCIATION OF NAMES

Regions swept or threatened by war in Europe contain many cities made familiar to Americans by association with items commonly found on pre-war menus. It is a peculiarly European custom. In this country there is Philadelphia cream cheese, but not much of it is produced in Philadelphia, and those engaged in the cheese business assert that it did not originate there.

As a matter of fact, there is more bologna made in Chicago in a week than in Bologna in a year. Almost any large American city grinds out more frankfurters in a day than Frankfurt does in a month. Vienna has been left far to the rear by New York in the production of wieners. In comparison to total world output, the limburg manufactured in Limburg was little more than a smelt.

HARRISBURG (INS)—Many taproom operators in the Harrisburg area have a novel way of informing patrons that the midnight curfew is just about in effect. An employee blinks the lights about 10 minutes before midnight as a signal to clear the establishment.

ERIE (INS)—When three-year-old Joey Gallagher disappeared in three feet of water in a pond on their father's farm, Jack Gallagher, his five-year-old brother, plunged in and searched the bottom until he found the water-logged child. Artificial respiration restored Joe.

Brothers Have A Reunion In The South Pacific

After being in the South Pacific for nearly a year, Cpl. Arthur Ahlum and his brother, Arnold Ahlum, S. 1/c, met at a hospital in New Guinea, where Cpl. Ahlum has been resting after the battle of Leyte.

Knowing that his brother was stationed in the vicinity of New Guinea, Cpl. Ahlum asked the assistance of the Red Cross in locating his brother. Through that medium it was learned that the brothers were close enough to visit.

Cpl. Ahlum is hospitalized, but expects to return to his unit in the near future.

Both men write that their meeting is the next best thing to a fur-lough home. They also have a brother, PFC Paul Ahlum, in Belgium, and Seaman Ahlum has a son, Lawrence Ahlum, S. 1/c, who has been overseas for 18 months.

Once upon a time, a big, angry dog yanked to a young puppy that he would chew him up. "Not until you catch me," said the little pup. Then he ran for his life with the larger dog in close pursuit. Spying a stove-pipe nearby, the pup ran and hid in it. "Come out or I'll come in after you," said the big dog. "Come ahead," answered the puppy. The big dog squeezed his head and front legs into the pipe but soon found he could go no farther... neither in nor out. Then the little dog climbed to the top of the pipe and laughed because he knew he could jump out whenever he wanted.

MAJORETTES WIN BY FIVE POINTS OVER SPARROWS

Accurate Foul Shooting and 3rd Period Rally Results
in Victory

FINAL SCORE IS 37 TO 32

Sparrows Did Not Score A Single Point Via The Foul Route

Accurate foul shooting and a thrilling third-period rally gave the Majorettes a close 37-32 victory over the Fleetwings Sparrows in the first of a three-game series to determine the championship of the Trenton Playground League.

The Majorettes scored 12 points in the third session while holding the Sparrows to a single field goal. Going into the period, the score had been deadlocked at 20-20. The Fleetwings made an attempt to wipe off the large lead in the final quarter when they scored 10 points and held the ultimate winners to five.

The winners took advantage of the foul opportunities and dropped in seven out of 11 tries. The 'Wingers did not score any points via the foul route.

Leading the Trenton team's attack was "Flash" Flagg who accounted for 18 points. Betty Duffy led the losers with six double-doubles.

Nation-Wide Search Launched for Murderer

A nation-wide search has been launched by F. B. I. Agents for Joseph D. Medley, 43, ex-convict and fugitive from justice, who is charged with fleeing from Washington, D. C., to avoid prosecution for murder. John F. Sears, Special Agent in Charge of the Philadelphia office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, made this announcement today.

Medley is sought for the brutal slaying of Mrs. Nancy Boyer who was fatally wounded by two shots through the head in Washington, D. C., on March 6 of this year.

On November 27, 1944, Medley escaped from a guard of the Michigan State Prison, Jackson, Michigan, where he was serving a sentence for armed robbery. He is reported to have two revolvers in his possession, one of which is carried in a shoulder holster; the other gun is believed to be a snub-nosed revolver.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, July 22, 1901, Medley is approximately six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. His dark straight hair is thick, parted on the left side, and streaked with gray which gives him the appearance of being an older man. He has "piercing" grayish-blue eyes, sharp prominent nose, heavy eyebrows and he is clean-shaven. This fugitive has a number of scars on his persons, including a slight scar on the right side of his nose, a small scar at the base of his nose, two cut scars on the inner side of his right wrist, a one-inch cut scar above his right ear, and scars resulting from burns on his back beneath the left shoulder and on his upper chest. He wears a size ten and one-half shoe, narrow width, and he has a complete set of false teeth.

Mr. Sears announced that on March 10, 1945, a warrant was issued by a U. S. Commissioner at Washington, D. C., charging Medley with fleeing from the District of Columbia to avoid prosecution for the crime of murder. Medley is known to have the aliases of Joseph Bennett, Lawrence A. Fisher, Joseph D. Garner, James H. Hanan, and several others.

Doughton why he did not adopt the following advice—quoted from President Roosevelt's acceptance speech in 1932:

"I know something of taxes. For 3 long years I have been going up and down the country preaching that government—Federal, and State, and local—costs too much. I shall not stop that preaching."

There followed a several-way exchange in which it was intimated that Mr. Rich was too persistent, was politically-minded, was criticizing the war effort, and had a mind closed to the acceptance of information.

But presently Mr. Rich cornered Congressman Doughton with the following question:

"Does not the gentleman believe that in the operation of our Government now we ought to economize in every item of expense of the Government that does not pertain to the furtherance of the war effort?"

There is, of course, only one reply possible to such a question—divergent as may be the policies of the New Dealers and anti-New Dealers in trying to comply—and Congressman Doughton backed off hastily.

"I have great respect for the gentleman from Pennsylvania," he declared. "He is very consistent. His voice is a voice crying in the wilderness. I agree that we should attempt to effect more rigid economy."

In the course of the long session, Congressman Rich was on his feet over and over, and wound up having made two extended speeches, full of the soaring statistics of the Roosevelt administration, on this main thesis:

"Let us win the war, let us spend the money for war purposes, but let us stop unnecessary expenses in the operation of the Government."

In the end, while not a single one of the objections raised by Congressman Rich received an adequate answer from the exponents of spending, the measure passed in accordance with pre-arranged understanding.

But the slight effect of Congressman Rich's persistent reminder of the approaching day of judgment, when national borrowing may be stopped by economic laws far stronger than those of Congress, is not the correct measure of the value of his services.

Stubbornly and ceaselessly, he is waving a red lantern on the road to ruin.

"Somewhere at sea," a PT boat roars past an aircraft carrier. The planes are Navy Dauntless Dive bombers. (Official U. S. Navy photograph.)

Bombers, fighter planes, PT boats are powered by 100-octane gasoline. It's well known that gasoline of this rating can be made from oil of low sulfur content. But urgent demands for the gas were even greater than enormous supplies of the oil.

Atlantic supplied an answer . . . with the help of the glass wool that comes in "bats." As a result, high sulfur content of certain crude oils no longer limits production of 100-octane combat gas.

At the start, Atlantic's scientists jumped in to produce 91-octane fuel from these oils. That was when unheard-of quantities of such gasoline suddenly were demanded for our aviation training program. Battling against time, Atlantic engineers whipped problem after problem in pilot plant runs—finally got 91-octane from high sulfur oils.

With the switch to full-scale operation in the refinery, new "bugs" popped up. Carbon particles plugged the top of the huge catalyst bed, retarding the flow of vapors.

Here's where Atlantic researchers "broke up the game" with glass wool bats. The glass wool caught the carbon . . . licked the last trouble in volume production under the new process. So successful is the process that today it's being used to produce 100-octane fighting fuel.

That's typical Atlantic research. Helping win the war today . . . it will bring you even finer petroleum products for peacetime use tomorrow.
